I sought to capture a moment in our country's history so relevant to our culture today, March 12th, 1789. The moment in this picture is a testament to the strong mothers of our culture, to love and carry on for your families- unselfishly in spite of hard times- and remain true to your faith in God. Mary Washington a widow and single mother to seven children, lived and loved well.

George Washington met his mother Mary in her bedroom sitting area with his profound news, he would lead our new country. The Mother of our country put her hand on his head for her final blessing and said Heaven's and his Mother's blessing would always be with him. They embraced at her bedroom door and said tearful goodbyes as she would journey to Heaven soon after.
